Two Held In Russia Are Quizzed In D.C.

Washington, Oct. 21 (P)—Two United States travelers who ran into trouble in Russia reported to the State Department late today.

A spokesman said the department is weighing their case to see whether the United States should protest to Moscow.

The two are Mark I. Kaminsky, 28, of Cass County, Mich., and Harvey C. Bennett, 26, of Bath, Maine.

Kaminsky was sentenced by the Soviets to a seven-year term on a charge of spying. Then Kaminsky and Bennett, held by the Russians as a witness at Kaminsky's trial, were expelled.

The State Department spokesman said both denied it was for any United States Intelligence agency.
